DIAGNOSTIC

FIND YOUR ONE MISSING MULTIPLIER

ONE HIRE. ONE VITAL ROLE. MULTIPLIED FUTURE.

THE DIAGNOSTIC + FIVE SEATS WORKSHEET

DARREN HARDY
The Advisor Behind The World's Most Driven Business Builders

HOW TO USE THIS WORKSHEET

This worksheet is the companion to the 12-minute Missing Multiplier video. The video gave you the pattern. This worksheet turns it into a personal diagnosis. Twenty minutes from now, you will know exactly which leadership seat is empty in your business, why it has been costing you, and what to do about it.

FOUR STEPS

1. Watch the 12-minute video first. (If you have not yet, do that now. This worksheet will mean nothing without it.)
2. Return to this worksheet and complete the 20-question diagnostic on the next two pages.
3. Read the seat reference card for the seat you scored highest in.
4. Make the one decision the next page asks you to make.

WHAT YOU WILL WALK AWAY WITH

- The specific seat your Missing Multiplier sits in (one of five).
- The exact profile of the hire you have been postponing.
- The cost of leaving the seat open one more year.
- The next move to find them.

YOU ARE ONE HIRE AWAY FROM MULTIPLYING YOUR FUTURE AND GETTING YOUR LIFE BACK.

Estimated time: 10 minutes.

The 20-Question Diagnostic

Read each statement. Mark TRUE or FALSE for your business as it operates today. Be brutally honest. The diagnostic is only as accurate as your willingness to admit what is actually happening. Add up your TRUE answers in each section. Carry the totals to the next page.

SEAT 1: THE OPERATOR

☐ T ☐ F I am still making operational decisions I know shouldn't reach my desk.

☐ T ☐ F My week is more reactive than strategic, no matter how hard I try to change it.

☐ T ☐ F I do not have one person who could run this company for two weeks without me.

☐ T ☐ F Our systems are duct-taped together by my memory and my Slack history.

Section Subtotal:

SEAT 2: THE BUILDER

☐ T ☐ F Our product or platform roadmap lives mostly in my head.

☐ T ☐ F The technical or operational core of our business needs me in the room to function.

☐ T ☐ F I have outgrown the founder-as-product-leader stage but have not replaced myself.

☐ T ☐ F Our competitors are shipping faster than we are and I can feel the gap widening.

Section Subtotal:

SEAT 3: THE CLOSER

- ☐ T ☐ F The biggest deals in our pipeline still close because I am personally in the room.
- ☐ T ☐ F My top reps' performance lives or dies on my direct involvement, not the system.
- ☐ T ☐ F Our sales forecasting is more wish than math.
- ☐ T ☐ F Our sales engine is one person and that person is still me.

Section Subtotal: /4

SEAT 4: THE CAPITAL STRATEGIST

- ☐ T ☐ F I do not truly know our unit economics by customer, channel, and product.
- ☐ T ☐ F Cash flow is the silent stress in my week, even when revenue looks fine.
- ☐ T ☐ F I have not seriously evaluated acquisitions or capital strategy.
- ☐ T ☐ F The five-year financial version of our business is fuzzy.

Section Subtotal: /4

SEAT 5: THE BRAND ARCHITECT

- ☐ T ☐ F Our marketing is mostly performance and tactics, not story and identity.
- ☐ T ☐ F We compete on price or features more than I would like to admit.
- ☐ T ☐ F Our best customers come from word-of-mouth I cannot manufacture on purpose.
- ☐ T ☐ F I have been telling myself we do not need this seat because the product is the brand.

YOUR MISSING MULTIPLIER SEAT:

The section with the highest subtotal is your seat. If two are tied, choose the one you have been avoiding the longest. That is almost always the right answer.

HOW TO READ YOUR SCORE

The seat with your highest subtotal is the seat your Missing Multiplier sits in.
Here is what the score tells you about urgency.

3 OR 4 TRUE IN ANY SECTION

This is the seat. The Missing Multiplier in your business sits here. Postponing this hire one more year will cost you more than making it will.

2 TRUE IN ANY SECTION

The seat is a real candidate. It is probably your Missing Multiplier, but a tied score in another section may compete. Use the tiebreaker rule below.

0 OR 1 TRUE IN ANY SECTION

This seat is filled or not relevant for your current stage. Move on to the higher-scoring seats.

IF 2 OR MORE SEATS TIED

The tiebreaker is not a coin flip.
It is a confession.

Choose the seat you have been avoiding the longest.

That is almost always the right answer.

The seat you have been avoiding is the seat you have been doing yourself. You have been telling yourself you are good enough at it. You have been telling yourself it is too important to delegate. You have been telling yourself you will hire it later. Later is now.

THE FIVE SEATS

Read the card for the seat you scored highest in.
The rest are for reference once you fill the first one.

SEAT 1. THE OPERATOR

The leader who turns your strategy into a machine and takes operations off your desk entirely.

DYNASTY PROOF

Steve Jobs hired Tim Cook. Cook revolutionized Apple's supply chain, reduced production costs by billions, and built the operational excellence that scaled the iPhone into the most successful product in business history.

AT YOUR ALTITUDE

Sidd Pagidipati, CEO of Better Health Group, came to Darren stalled at $60M and stressed beyond measure. He recruited a veteran operator as President. 2 years later: revenue tripled to $180M. Today the company is valued in the billions.

WHAT THIS HIRE DOES FOR YOU

Takes your calendar back. Builds the organization that runs without you in the room. Turns your business from a personality into an asset.

COST OF LEAVING THE SEAT OPEN

Your business stays the size of your personal calendar.

SEAT 2. THE BUILDER

The leader who architects the product, platform, or technology that becomes the asset your business is actually worth.

DYNASTY PROOF

Satya Nadella named Scott Guthrie to run Azure. Guthrie architected the platform from an Amazon also-ran into a $100 billion business and lifted Microsoft's market cap by $2.7 trillion.

AT YOUR ALTITUDE

Troy Berg, CEO of Dane Manufacturing, was stalled at $1M. In Troy's own words: "It was not going to grow, get better, or do anything with excellence because it all depended on me." He hired his first true A-player on faith that "great people are free." The company has 3X'd three times since. $1M to $30M.

WHAT THIS HIRE DOES FOR YOU

Turns your roadmap into a real product instead of a list. Gives you something to sell that does not require you in the room.

COST OF LEAVING THE SEAT OPEN

You keep selling time. You should be building an asset.

SEAT 3. THE CLOSER

The leader who owns revenue. Builds the sales engine, hires the team, and turns your offer into a forecastable growth machine.

DYNASTY PROOF

Most founders are accidentally the Closer in their own business. Every company that scaled past its founder did so because the founder replaced themselves with a real revenue leader before it was too late.

AT YOUR ALTITUDE

Kevin Ortner, President and CEO of Renters Warehouse at the time, was hesitant to hire A-level talent commanding significant compensation. He committed anyway, paying $300K salary, $300K bonus, $165K signing, plus millions in stock. In Kevin's words: "The first year he has already brought us $6.9M. That is an 11X ROI. This is brilliant."

WHAT THIS HIRE DOES FOR YOU

Makes sales repeatable, hireable, and forecastable.

COST OF LEAVING THE SEAT OPEN

Revenue is capped at your personal selling capacity.

SEAT 4. THE CAPITAL STRATEGIST

The leader who turns your business into a financial machine. Cash flow, margin engineering, capital allocation, acquisitions, exit positioning.

DYNASTY PROOF

Warren Buffett would not be Warren Buffett without Charlie Munger. Sixty years of returns were a Buffett-Munger product, not a Buffett solo.

AT YOUR ALTITUDE

An $80M AUM multi-family real estate operator placed a former PE CFO into the seat. 36 months later: $400M AUM and their first fund launched.

WHAT THIS HIRE DOES FOR YOU

Turns revenue into wealth. Turns opportunities into acquisitions.

COST OF LEAVING THE SEAT OPEN

You build revenue. You never build wealth.

SEAT 5. THE BRAND ARCHITECT

The leader who turns your company into a story the market wants to be part of.

DYNASTY PROOF

Reed Hastings hired Ted Sarandos. Marvel handed Kevin Feige the keys to the entire cinematic universe. Both turned transactional businesses into cultural forces. The product did not change. The story did.

AT YOUR ALTITUDE

A $9M DTC skincare brand founder recruited a creative director from a heritage beauty house. 3 years later: $36M and a strategic acquisition most brands her size never see.

WHAT THIS HIRE DOES FOR YOU

Builds a moat that price and features cannot compete with.

COST OF LEAVING THE SEAT OPEN

You build a company. You do not build a brand.

WHAT'S NEXT

You now know your Missing Multiplier seat. Knowing the seat is half the work. Filling it is the other half.

Most founders stop here, sit on the diagnosis for six months, and then absorb the cost of inaction without ever saying it out loud. Do not be most founders.

THE FOUR THINGS YOU STILL NEED

Knowing your seat is the diagnosis. Filling it is the execution. The execution rests on four things this worksheet cannot give you.

- HOW to FIND your Missing Multiplier. The right person is never on LinkedIn open to work. They are already valuable somewhere else.
- HOW to know they will WORK well with you and in your business. The compatibility filter most founders skip.
- HOW to test whether they will be a long-term PATRIOT or a temporary mercenary. The single hardest test in executive hiring.
- HOW to RECRUIT that level of talent and AFFORD to pay them what it will take. The compensation-to-ROI math that ends the price-tag flinch forever.

WHERE I COVER ALL FOUR

I will buy you an hour of my time on a private briefing called The Missing Multiplier Briefing. Gratis. Not a webinar. Not a workshop. An hour with me to walk you through all four.

I only work with serious leaders who want to build a seriously great enterprise. If this is you, I'll see you there.
